it is quite natural that the bride-to-be stocks her toilet table afresh.

First she wants a delicate sachet powder for seenting trunks, bags, boxes and bureau drawers. A lasting and yet dainty seent is secured by mixing powdered orris root and any good vloiet sachet powder in equal quantities. This is far more illusive and pleasing than any floral scent alone.

An excellent lavender powder for the linen closet is made by powdering and mixing ten ounces of dried lavender leaves, three ounces of powdered benzoin, and six ounces of cyprus powder, to which you add one and one-half drams of oil of lavendes (Mitcham). This is more lasting than plain lavender leaves.

The excitement incident to wedding day preparations is apt to cause excessive preparations. To reduce this under the arms try mixing common baking soda in equal proportions with talcum powder and apply thickly.

For the hands apply this lotion first: Cologne, four ounces; tincture of beliadonna, one-half ounce. When you have rubbed this in until the misture is absorbed, powder with orris root or talcum powder.

If the perspiration on the hands is excessive from nervousness, bathe thorouse, elder flower we water, six ounces; elder flower with orris root or talcum powder.

If the hands and arms turn unusually red under the excitement try this liquid white, which will hide, but will not reduce the redness: Pure oxide of zincone ounce; glycerine, one dram; rosewater, four ounces; essence of rose, lift the sinc dissolving it in just enough the glycenic, next the remainder of the spewater to cover it, then add the

Insertions of All Kinds

Dainty bits of insertion of both lace Dainty bits of insertion of both lace and embroidery are set into lingerie frocks in most delightful effects, and there is no fidelity to any particular designs. Variety is the spice of fashions as well as of life, and the couturiere who injects the most of it into her tollettes is the one who is regarded as the most original. It would seem as if all the inspiration possible had been drawn out of the portraits by old masters, but this is not the case. Some of the new skirts are after Reynolds, modernized, of course, with bands of silk or braid, and combinations are more incongruous than ever.

To Remove Mildew

Put about a tablespoonfui of chloride of lime in a wooden pail or earthen jar, and add four quarts of cold water; stir until all the lime is dissolved, using a wooden spoon. Put the mildewed article into the water and work it about, using the spoon or paddle. Let the article stay in the water until all the mildew darticle stay in the water until all the mildew day has disappeared, then throw into a tub of cold water. Wash well in this and throw into a second tub of water; wring out dry.

mood, the perfumers are doing a rush No longer is it the fad to adopt or distinguishing perfume and cling to that and that alone. Smart women want 900 DROPS and that alone. Smart women want variety in everything, and just as you have a gown to fit every emotion, you must have a perfume to express the emotion and to harmonize with the gown. The maid, of course, sees that each frock and petticoat is duly scented before it is handed to her mistress.

Your Spanish lace frock, for Instance, is heavily scented with chipose of peau d'Espange. There is something as maidenly coquettish and "passionate" about these heavy scents as about a beautiful senorita. They are, in the words of Lady Duff, "Intense, vivid, compelling."

compelling."
Your mauve French calling gown is delicately perfumed with violette or orris of Parisian manufacture. It speaks of the lighter moods and would suggest nothing more harmless than a cup of tea.

Your walking dress of Scotch tweed is scented with heather, barely detectable and merely suggesting fragrance and health. This is your coldest mood, "Business, plain business," is what it suggests.

But your kimonos and Oriental house frocks are steeped in frangipani, ghelsha flower water, sandalwood and all the sweet mild odors of the East. For home is where all your gentlest, sweetest, and most fascinating moods may display themselves.

In short, there is no limit to the different scents in which the limitless moods and tenses of a woman may find perfect expression.

RESTORES your HAIR to its NATURAL COLOR.

With the ripening of fresh fruit we can plan many dainty dishes and desserts for all kinds of meels. When the home berries are ready for the table and the June days are warm and sunny, this dinner will appeal to many appetites. Fancy accessories would make it a stately and formal affair, yet it is not a difficult menu, and quite within compass of the hostess who knows how to cook and can have the assistance of one maid:

Fruit Cups
Fish Coquilles. Latticed Potatoes. Crown of Lamb. Green Peas. Rice Balls.

Stuffed Tomato Salad.

Cheese Wafers.

Frozen Strawberries.
Fancy Cakes. Strawberries.
Fancy Cakes. Strawberries, one small pineapple, one banana, an orange, and two lemons, a pound and a half of cod or other firm fish, ribs from one lamb.

With the ripening of fresh fruit we despend into a soft ball with the fingers. Take off and as soon as cool enough to be handled stir with a heavy spoon. It will cloud, then rapidly thicken. Gather it in the hands, work like bread dough until soft, then pack in a bowl, cover tightly and keep in a cool, dry place. About two hours before the meal put quarter of it in a small bowl in a pan of hot water and mash and stir until like cream. Have the berries very dry. Dip each in the fondant, then lay on waxed paper until firm. Two dozen will be sufficient. They begin to soften in a few hours. The remainder of the foundant can be used for cake icing. Cut a piece from the stem end of each town to strawberries, one small pineapple, one banana, an orange, and two lemons, a pound and a half of cod or other firm fish, ribs from one lamb. "Had been troubled with dandruff a long time. After using one bottle of Hair-health I found the dandruff gone and my hair, which was two-thirds gray (I am 48 years old), restored to its natural auburn color.—GRACE EICH-MANN, La Crosse, Wis." pineapple, one banana, and orange, and two lemons, a pound and a half of cod or other firm fish, ribs from one lamb, a quart of fresh shelled peas, six nice tomatoes, one or two heads of lettuce. Have the butcher trim the meat and tie it in crown form for roasting. Pin caps of heavy paper over the projecting rib bones, and it is ready for the oven. Much of the preparation can be done in advance. Steam the fish; when cool remove skin and bones and break it in flakes. Make a white sauce with one tablespoonful each of butter and flour, a scant cupful of milk and salt and cayenne to season. When partly cooled add the beaten yolks of three eggs, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, and the fish. Divide this between six shells or small dishes, and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. To finish place on a large pan in a hot oven for about ten minutes or long enough to slightly color the crumits.

Wash a cupful of raw rice and boil five minutes in a kettle of salted water. Drain, put in a double boller with a pint of milk, a tablespoonful of onton juice, a dash of cayenne, and a little pepper, and a teaspoonful of salt and cook until dry and tender; when almost done add more seasoning and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Set aside until cold. Mold in small balls and dip each heaten egg, then roll in fine dry crumbs. Just before the meal these are to be fried in deep, smoking and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley.
